NINETEEN FORTY THREE

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1999. The number of people aged 65 and over has increased by 0.5 billion, from 0.3 billion in 1980 to 0.8 billion in 1999.

There are a number of reasons why the world population is growing so rapidly. One of the main reasons is that the number of children born to each woman has increased. In 1980, the average woman in the world had 2.5 children. In 1999, the average woman in the world had 2.8 children.

Another reason why the world population is growing so rapidly is that the number of people who are living longer is increasing. In 1980, the average life expectancy in the world was 67 years. In 1999, the average life expectancy in the world was 72 years.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people who are living longer is increasing. One of the main reasons is that the number of people who are getting better medical care is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a doctor. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a doctor.

Another reason why the number of people who are living longer is increasing is that the number of people who are getting better nutrition is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a balanced diet. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a balanced diet.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people who are getting better medical care is increasing. One of the main reasons is that the number of people who are getting better education is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a primary school. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a primary school.

Another reason why the number of people who are getting better medical care is increasing is that the number of people who are getting better housing is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a modern house. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a modern house.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people who are getting better housing is increasing. One of the main reasons is that the number of people who are getting better income is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a minimum wage. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a minimum wage.

Another reason why the number of people who are getting better income is increasing is that the number of people who are getting better education is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a primary school. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a primary school.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people who are getting better education is increasing. One of the main reasons is that the number of people who are getting better health care is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a primary health care center. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a primary health care center.

Another reason why the number of people who are getting better health care is increasing is that the number of people who are getting better nutrition is increasing. In 1980, only 10% of the world's population had access to a balanced diet. In 1999, 30% of the world's population had access to a balanced diet.

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The Department of Health (1999) has identified the need to improve the mental health of the workforce as a priority for the new millennium. The Department of Health (1999) has also identified the need to improve the mental health of the workforce as a priority for the new millennium.

THE 1943 POWDER HORN

FORWARD

March the Pioneers of nineteen forty-three. In this book we are attempting to portray George Rogers Clark at war—a fighting school, befitting a fighting student body.

This year the Powder Horn has gone to battle, too. Because of war time shortages the annual is smaller and more compact. Instead of a mere picturization of school life, it has become a living record of what Clark students are doing.

TO BATTLE

to win the victory and the peace and to make this country a better arsenal of democracy

We wish to thank O. W. Bodie, photographer, Charles DeLaney, printer, Bruce Cowan of Pontiac Engraving, and Mercury Pictures for their kind cooperation. The Powder Horn is by the students, of the students, and for you, the students!

WE HEREBY

this book to all the George Rogers Clark men and women who are serving and will serve in the armed forces of our country. The knowledge they have received will fit them for the services they will perform. Clark is happy in the confidence that each will do his duty.

We know that they are the ones who are making this annual and all creative endeavors possible. To them, loyal men and women who are still fighting Pioneers, we pay homage

DEDICATE

As we look up and see the flag waving serenely over Clark's green lawns, we dedicate our futures to that which we are dedicating their lives—eternal freedom, justice, and Brotherhood.

On these pages are listed all Clark alumni in the armed forces up to May 1, 1943, according to the year in which they graduated. The list was compiled by the Hi-Y under the sponsorship of Mr. Paul Wilkinson. John Roberts headed the committee in charge of collecting the names.

ADMINISTRATION

Graduate Mr. R. B. Miller's housing code has abolished the well-known dead end of the municipal office. In fact, to those who realize the genuine nature of student problems and the welfare of our student body, he is known as the pioneer.

The first person new students become acquainted with is Mr. Ralph Cox, personal director and chief student counselor. He advises students on school and credits, besides providing valuable aid in placing graduates in business and industrial positions.

Mrs. Helen Brown, the chief secretary in charge of our housekeeping with house and Miss Julia Dedinsky, stenographer, are always ready to give the student a hand.

Nothing and department of our administration is the school board, appointed by the city council. This group of men keeps Eugene Rogers Clark in fighting form.

FACULTY

In another fine new situation and provided her teachers from the student body about twenty to thirty for guidance and help. Especially now that the school has been placed in proper enlightenment the management. More than ever before the student needs knowledge and expert guidance. It is the duty of the school during the period of total war to be the best. The best in the teacher is the best in the student.

Our faculty met this responsibility with the highest cooperation. Guidance committee for action has been organized to broadly enlighten at first what the war would do to them then future. In the future, the organization by faculty members during the war. Our staff in his all-out drive for victory were not only discussed but carried out completely.

The second committee brought an even heavier schedule in the faculty. War time measures for control the securing of additional personnel in the teachers' ranks. These measures were given before. New courses added to the curriculum emphasized the regular subjects. Not only did the faculty give up more of its time to school but the teachers who worked after school and Saturdays on running of fuel and foodstuffs and learning system defense corps. Its regular production of new stamps and bonds the teachers added materially to the war effort.

The year 1945 brought many scholastic, athletic and esthetic laurels to George Rogers Clark. However, the success was greatly due to the diligence and persistence of a hard-working faculty. We are, along with the assurance that when we leave Clark we shall be well-prepared for the future with a healthy body and a mind capable of making the right decisions.

Faculty list in books: Mr. John Henry, Mr. John Starnes, Mrs. David Hubbard, Mrs. Elizabeth Lyle, Mrs. Paul Korman, Mrs. Evelyn Graham, Mrs. John Dwyer, Mrs. Paul Graham, Mrs. Margaret Lee, Mrs. Ida Jones, Mrs. Emma Saxon, Mrs. Gaudin, Mrs. Lillian, Mrs. Mary M. Ann, Mrs. Emily Johnson, Mrs. Martha Carter, Mrs. Helen Tate, Mrs. Vera Wilder, Mrs. Emma Tate, Mrs. Emma School, Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. Patricia Williamson, Mrs. Emma Bender, Mrs. Winifred Fox, Mrs. Leah Smith, Mrs. Mary Tate, Mr. John Tate, Mr. M. H. Nidder, Mr. Joe Carter, Mr. Edward Stoddard, Mr. Vernon Cunningham, Mr. Fred Whitman, Mr. Joe Tate, Mr. Thos. Starnes, Mrs. Joseph Tate, Mrs. Victoria Carter, Mrs. John Hubbard, Mr. Ann Apple.

Forever above the America that is ours Old Glory shall wave—the symbol of eternal freedom, justice, and equality. Torn and tattered, but still undaunted, it waved above Pearl Harbor after the treacherous attack that marked the entrance of the United States into the greatest conflict of all times—the Second World War.

Once again comes the reassuring tread of marching feet marching to work, to war, to victory. Our windows are proud with service stars, our hearts are filled with thanksgiving for a country under God. Overnight, Americans became a unified, fighting people.

We in America know that we are fighting for the inherent right of all men to govern and judge themselves. The peace we win shall not be temporary; neither shall we compromise with any totalitarian power. All our strength and might is bent toward obtaining an America for all people, a global democracy.

To the Stars and Stripes we pledge our allegiance—long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

REMEMBER DEC. 7TH!

ONWARD TO VICTORY

Deep down in your hearts you knew it was coming long before the day arrived. Perhaps that is why you were ready when it came, ready to assume your new responsibilities with stout courage, firmness of mind, and undaunted spirits.

Certainly no class has gone forth from the portals of George Rogers Clark under such dark clouds as has the Class of 1943. Yours shall be the task of rapid adjustment to a changed world, of postponing well-laid plans of further education, as you become men and women overnight.

There have been those who found fault with your determination to cling to a few of the light-hearted prerogatives of youth. Those of us who have known and understood you best had no such fears.

Therefore, to the Class of 1943 from those of us who remain behind go our avowals of absolute faith, our feelings of deep affection, and our God-speed.

JOHN E. SHANKLIN

SENIOR CLASS

About to embark upon the final road of goodby, then the Senior Class of 1945 looks to retrospect upon its long years of high school and seriously considers its place in the troubled world ahead.

As the freshman group of 1939-40, the class started its high school career under the capable leadership of Mr. John L. Shanklin, sponsor. Jack Flein, president, Ed Kennedy, vice president, Betty Sparks, secretary, and Robert Conklin, treasurer. As its first successful season undertaking the class presented "A Springtime Dream."

Led by Dick Fegans, president, Ray Molson, vice president, Lorraine Barnes, secretary, and Tom Cio, its treasurer in its sophomore year, the class began the second phase of its high school career. As their contribution to the social wheel the sophomores of 1940-41 presented the novel and exciting "Mexicans."

During its junior year the class was led by Harry Smolen, president, Lawrence Connor, vice president, Margaret Dubick, secretary, and Edward Matisko, treasurer.

The dramatically gifted students of the class presented a humorous performance, "Over Sore Eye," as their group play, which proved to be highly successful.

Noting the closing of its third year, the class presented the annual promenade page, entitled "Black Out," as a tribute to World War.

Taking over the responsibility of leadership in the school and becoming their final year, class members were headed by: Aida Kaplan, president, Helen Becker, vice president, Lydia Kotinski, secretary, and James Fergus, treasurer. Edward Matisko was elected president of the student governing body, the Student Council.

Choosing its social contributions to the school, the Class of '45 presented the successful patriotic play, "The American Way," and "An Old-Fashioned Christmas Dinner."

Concluding its career brought to a successful close the senior last year at Oak. The Senior Class of 1945 will face the uncertain world of today with a fine determination to do its best work, regardless of difficulties. And if the high school career of this class is as memorable as 1940-41, the world will be proud to welcome this group of young men and women into its midst.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

With fourteen seniors and two juniors listed in the National Honor Society list, the total membership included twenty-four. The three standing members elected during their junior year are Lydia Krasinski, Carlos Goldner and Adele Kaplan, also officers of the club. Goldner acts as president, Adele, vice-president, and Lydia, secretary-treasurer.

The qualifications necessary for election to this society are: a fine character, qualities of leadership, rank in the upper third of the class, and willingness to serve. Only juniors and seniors are eligible to become members.

The National Honor Society chose an inspiring motto: its high standards of merit, this purpose, including the enthusiasm for scholarship, to promote qualities of leadership to develop character, and to stimulate the desire for rendering service.

The honor society was first organized at Clark in 1927, as a chapter of the nationwide organization. It is considered a mark of distinction to be selected to its membership, since honor students from all parts of the United States are members of the society.

Students elected to this society usually strive for living up to the standards and the purpose. Anyone who tries to uphold it is already "smart" help, but maybe he is.

Clark's increased activity was not made less and covered the aims and purposes of this society. This group maintains that its ideals are growing more in the present time of continued thinking, more than ever before.

Observing the history and history of purpose, which guides this select group, we can truly understand our eyes and say, "An organization of successful leaders and merits our sincere praise. Welcome to the future of the National Honor Society!"

CLASS

And came the spring. The play concerned high school students. Among the very common disease was... In this production the juniors proved their acting ability.

The Junior Class was well represented in all clubs and school activities. This class had both scholastic and athletic ability. Many of the juniors were prominent in debate and speech work. The basketball team, the sectional winners, was composed chiefly of juniors. Many of them were outstanding football and track stars. Music and the fine arts were not slighted by this class. Many juniors were in the band, choruses and orchestra.

Activities of class members were not limited to school, lighter events. In the past sessions the juniors did much to help win the war. Not only did they encourage the sale of war stamps by using them as prizes for the student body, but they also purchased the war bonds. Besides this they did Red Cross and civilian defense work. Some of the juniors helped with the scrap metal drive. The success of the class was due mostly to the willing cooperation of its members. Regardless of the price they all worked eagerly. The class also had a great deal of individuality.

To close their five year the juniors held a prom on June 1 in the gym, which well always be remembered for its novel decorations.

After their first two years at Clark, we had these sophomores participating in all the school activities. The various sports attracted many of the sophomores. A number of them went out for football and through hard work and determination made the varsity team. Basketball, as with most classes, proved to be one of the sophomores' favorite sports. Several positions on our winning basketball team

The Sophomore Class was always outstanding in speech work and dramatics. Students from this class have entered contests and returned home bearing laurels. They promise Clark a very bright future in this field.

Music has interested many sophomores. He

This year as every year, a new group of green-eyed students from our junior high and surrounding parochial schools joined the high school student body. However the freshmen didn't remain green and timid very long. They soon became adapted to high school life and began taking active part in school affairs.

The class was organized rather late in the year but they didn't stop the energetic little freshmen. Miss Bernice Williamson was chosen as their sponsor to guide them through their high school career. Officers were elected as soon as possible. L. D. Schlatter was chosen president, Melba Johnson, vice president, Leta Thomas, secretary, and James Mullins, treasurer.

At one of the early meetings Mr. Ralph Cox, principal, directed the freshmen to better themselves with high school life. He explained the value of an education and also told them what to expect from high school life and what to work toward.

The first activity in the high school course of the Freshman Class was the student mixer sponsored by the prom. In order for their members to cooperate to the fullest extent it is necessary for the students to know each other. The student mixer was given for that purpose. Games were played and the students shared at this party. Thus the freshmen made their debut into Clark's society.

The big event of the year for the freshmen was their first dance. The "Swing low" given on March 15. This dance proved that the freshmen were capable of assuming responsibilities. The majority of the club members was shown by the cheer theme.

ORGANIZATIONS

George Rogers Clark has always been noted for its wide and varied activity program. Some organizations provide entertainment and relaxation, others actually train students in war time fields; all provide wholesome participation, student fellowship, and opportunities for developing specific talents.

Regardless of difficulties that arose with the abolishing of the extra-curricular period at the beginning of the second semester Clark organizations have attempted in every way to fit students to participate actively in peace and war time pursuits. The knowledge gained in various technical phases of our outside activities enable students to carry out future duties. The values that they accepted give them the conviction that we must win. The brotherhood gained through contact with fellow students assures them that justice shall prevail

ARMISTICE DAY

At eleven o'clock on November 11, 1918, the first World War was brought to a close. Each year at the same time we stand facing those victorious Eastern battlefields, silently contemplating the great sacrifices of a war which took all into its greedy grasp.

This year Armistice Day had an even greater meaning. The lonely call of the bugle reminded us that we are in another great struggle to preserve that which we hold dear.

We are building a firm foundation for tomorrow here at Clark. We are building a strong generation that will inaugurate a new and victorious Armistice Day, for all peoples.

HI-Y  Bill H. Boyd

The group maintains and extends throughout the school and community high standards of Christian living, more adopted as the theme and purpose of the current H-Y organization. With this aim in mind every day dialogue in the club was more in line with to establish for himself a line of moral character. The platform of clean speech, clean sportsmanship, and clean living was a dominating factor in carrying out this theme.

H-Y members have long been known as and standing students since their organization has come to be regarded as one of the most active in the school.

Most recent activities included devotional meetings in which various religious speakers took part. Discussions and social tables in which the members themselves participated served to emphasize the ideals of the club.

The biggest project which the club undertook was the magazine subscription drive. This drive was designed principally to make enough money to send an alumni member into honor roll. The honor roll plaque, designed in silver and gold to match the buildings of the main hall was estimated at approximately $200. Raising the money to support this project was the object of the magazine drive.

Other services which this organization rendered to the school were presenting an interesting and educational assembly to the students in the speaker from the Curtis Publishing Company, whose topic was "How to Sell," and another assembly which featured a movie "The Last Days of Pompeii." It also presented the annual H-Y Foot-Together Dance, a popular activity with the students at the time, and a program of the school term.

The greatest achievement of the club, according to H-Y members, is its amazing growth in the short time it has been organized. Early history of the club dates back to 1958, its first year at Clark. It is affiliated with the YMCA and acts as a junior branch of this nationally known organization.

Leaders of the H-Y for the year 1962-65 were Tom Carls, president; Donald Bates, vice president; Tom Wagner, secretary; and Randolph Plemich, treasurer. Mr. Paul Wilkinson was sponsor.

GIRL RESERVES

The year of the blue triangle within a circle was more this year than any other year in the past, perhaps even since Girl Reserve clubs first were organized. As always the aim and purpose of the club was to serve — whatever or whoever needed service.

During war time Girl Reserves found a desperate need for their help. The club as a whole gave financial aid to the Red Cross, the USO, the Community Chest, and the Carmelite Orphan Home.

Because there was a need for new war classes in the school curriculum, the latter daily schedule was shifted. Thus Girl Reserve meetings as a group were held after school. Most of these were devoted to Girl Reserve projects during war time. With Miss Bernice Williamson as chairman, one of the meetings was devoted to a fashion show of made-over clothes. Miss Williamson gave an demonstration on conserving clothes during war time. At another meeting a radio broadcast of the work Girl Reserves are doing during war was given at others community singing and a Christmas play composed the program.

However, the social side could not be neglected for morale plays a vitally important part in winning the war. Girl Reserve parties were held, the annual mixer with the Hi-Y was another social event of prime importance. This is always was a success, because it stimulated a feeling of cooperation between the two clubs.

In autumn the first social event of the year took place; the annual candlelighting service at which new members took their places in the circle of light.

During the year monthly meetings of the officers of Hammond High Tech, and Clark took place at the YWCA in Hammond, in order to acquaint members with the activities of the Inter Club Council. A open house was held for all members.

Each Christmas Girl Reserves did their part to spread cheer by caroling. This year was no exception and the girls sang at Meigs' Hospital and various public buildings in Hammond.

In spring a mother-daughter tea was held. The

* PATROL BOYS

The addition on the home front is an important one, the addition of a gun at your back (which is not to be lightened) is a lot of weapons and ammunition, the other is a lot of statelessness and death is added. The distinction in uniform is the contrasting khaki and navy blue with the white cross patch left of the patrol boys.

The war against auto accidents and death has not been too long been the aim of this group, but it remains its purpose, doubly important in the troubled times we are now confronting.

To protect the home front and guide pedestrians to safety, to put where our personal safety that of others, was the aim established by the Patrol Boys when the school year began.

Duties of the Patrol Boys consisted of helping smaller children cross the streets safely, patrolling the halls at noon, and helping to maintain order at football games.

One of the duties of the patrol boys is to be on his corner regardless of weather condition. The particular duty considered the hardest by many of the members was fulfilled by each patrol boy.

Patrol letters were secured by the members through regular work, which earned them this award. After serving a full year in active patrol duty or one-half year of double duty a boy was entitled to a letter.

Elective captains were chosen as the only officers for the Patrol Boys here at Clark. The duties of these captains were to preside at the official meetings of the patrol and to carry out any business which might arise. Mr. M. L. Mullins and Mr. Howard Stevenson acted as sponsors of the group.

STUDENT COUNCIL

To fulfill the needs of any active group of individuals a governing body must exist. This governing body must act as mediator, coordinator, and committee to bring on the best qualities of the group. Activating every one of us to solve the problem and lead for more capable leaders in our every day life is gradually being realized. At Greenacres Club, we could have been fulfilled by the Student Council representative organization of the school.

This group of individuals has been selected as the nucleus of the potential leaders of the future. In this capacity the members perform many duties all of which point to a stimulation of student activity.

They are chosen on a representative basis, truly representative of their principles and aims. At the beginning of the school term students nominated potential candidates through home room balloting. These in turn were voted on and elected members of the council.

In past years the council was composed of various committees such as assembly, magnavox, and locker committees, but this system has since been eliminated. A more direct method of dealing with student problems has been adopted. Any student requiring consultation by the council are now placed before the entire group.

During the past year the Student Council has been active in many spheres. It sponsored several assemblies, and initiation of the group, served as an assembly committee for the entire year. The committee planned and worked out almost the entire schedule for the year. Barbara Ayres acted as chairman and Miss Lucile Booth was secretary.

Discussions in regularly held meetings and awarding of scholarship letters were other concerns that the council undertook. The topics discussed involved many current problems of student life. One of the more prominent ones was trying to decide the benefits of awarding scholarship letters. Whether such a practice was wise and feasible in times of war when men gave up their lives and accepted no material reward was debated.

Leaders of the group were Edward Matusko, president; Bernard Skirka, vice president; Vera Kim, secretary; and James Pappas, treasurer. Miss R. B. Miller sponsored the Student Council.

ORCHESTRA

This year saw the orchestra adding a professional touch to all Clark's social activities while acquiring skill.

The organization provided music for "And Came the Spring," and "The American Way," the junior and senior plays besides playing for "Adam's Eve," the faculty production. On many occasions the orchestra was in the public eye. One of the highlights of its very active year was the Girl Scout rally for which the orchestra provided the entire musical score. In both the winter and spring concerts the orchestra presented a variety of musical numbers expertly directed by Mr. Darwin Eret besides appearing in the operetta, "Shreds and Patches."

In addition the orchestra appeared on an assembly program featuring Mr. John Shanklin at the piano in a rendition of the Piano Concerto in B Flat Major by Tschakowsky. Other soloists included Chalmer Smith, Elaine Pavlechak, and Virginia Gay.

For the first time in its history the orchestra had a brass section of its own—a trumpet section which belonged solely to the orchestra. Since the orchestra does not as yet have its own woodwind and the remaining brass sections members from the band played for all public appearances. This orchestra also grew by the addition of musicians who had demonstrated their ability on a stringed instrument.

Perhaps the most notable characteristic of the orchestra is that it is for all school organization. It includes musicians from the elementary grades to the senior high grades working all into musical pattern that strives to give its members a wide understanding of good music. In this capacity Mr. Eret serves as both teacher and director.

At the beginning of the second semester the orchestra began a point system by which members were given points for extra hours of practice and for aiding in the care of stands, chairs, and music. Those students who obtained the required number of points were awarded a letter at the end of the school year.

Playing together as a unit has provided the orchestra members with an appreciation of the great musical classics and has given them a wider knowledge of harmony and rhythm. Each year has brought more advanced music, and next year promises even greater triumphs for Mr. Eret and the orchestra.

While other organizations in school were occupied with doing the war effort, the debaters went one step further and concerned themselves with the organization of the future by debating the national question—Resolved: That a federal world government should be established.

The arguments of the team proved effective as evidenced by an extremely successful season. It included the winning of the LaPorte and Hammond High School tournaments, the annexation of the sectional debate crown, the National Forensic League championship for the second successive year and the Chicago League title. The season was climaxed when the team went to the finals of the State League tournament at Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana.

Especially noteworthy was the inexperience of the winning team. Only one member, Adele Kaplan, was left from the preceding year. Ann Marie Wats-kin, Neal Crowell, and George Kuehich were all beginners in the debate field.

Special credit must go to Miss Laura Schell, debate coach for the work she put forth in order to produce the most successful season in the history of debating at Clark High School.

In addition to the accomplishments of the debate team, individual speech activities have been very successful under the able guidance of Mr. Joe Gatto. The National Forensic League tournament held at Fort Wayne, Indiana, was ample proof of the ability of Clark's individual speech entrants. Almost all of the participants went to the final round of the NFL tourney, but the highest possible accomplishment was attained by Orville Herbert and by Leon Haehnel. Orville placed first in extemporaneous speech while Leon a freshman placed first in humorous declamation and second in dramatic declamation.

GIRLS' CHORUS

When he always played an overboard part in his at George Rogers Clark school. This interest has taken special form in certain clubs, namely, the Glee Club, the Triple Ten, and the musical clubs.

On the "City" of tomorrow broadcast, WGN's "Gay Club" reviewed its arrangement of "Rain" and "Love Life."

Triple A members have been featured at many meetings, both at local and other schools. The club broadcast a program over WAOB early in the year. The club has often called to supply

The combined work of the groups has tended to carry out a central purpose—the enjoyment and cultivation of interest in music. By this effort they hoped to create and build better morale for students and members of the community.

Leaders of the Glee Club for the past year were Evelyn Sabol, president; Betty Gaudin, vice president, and Betty Bard, secretary. She has also directed the choral work and accompanied the group on the piano.

*LATIN CLUBS

Traditionally a school of well studied things, Latin was never more popular in 1942 and 1943.

The first big project of the Latin classes was the Latin banquet in which all the students participated, with the second year classes acting as citizens, Roman, and the beginning students as slaves.

In their monthly club meetings the groups learned many interesting things concerning Roman people, their customs, and speech. These facts linked more closely the number of old Roman year periods and the present period.

Leading the groups in the various classes were last year, I. D. Schlatter, Tom Covey, president, Phyllis Rademacher, Melba Johnson, vice president, Corla Thomas, Annabelle Gillin, secretary, treasurer, and Bob Curtis, Norbert Adams, and Benj. H. SPANISH CLUB

The French students presented their contributions in various ways. In the classroom the teachers held discussions concerning modern France and the historical background of the country. A special programme consisted of learning war terms by use of a French territory.

Elected leaders were Lorraine Kowar, president; Betty Lukas, vice president; Georgia Pappas, secretary; and Margaret Iverson, treasurer.

introduced as a new study of 1348 Spanish immediately became a popular subject. The two new classes concerned adults with Mac Hual, Holland as sponsor, and the students set up as their purpose the development of better relations and a deeper understanding of our South and Central American neighbors.

All these activities have helped to fulfill this goal. Among them was an assembly in which a musician, an educational talk and musical skills in South American customs and speech were highlighted.

The officers chosen were Francis Douthett and Nicholas Simcik presidents; Kathleen Wirtz and Albert Audla vice presidents; Ed Uyehara and Rose Marie Valaskas secretary-treasurers.

ART CLUB

The Art Club has been especially instrumental in helping promote war time campaigns. Not only did it stimulate war bond and stamp sales by its colorful posters, but it also was an important factor in the success of the scriptural drive. Through this and other activities the organization helped in the war effort.

During the first semester members worked on individual projects. These made portraits, designed clothes, and modeled clay figures. The second semester was devoted to a group project, a mural made on the back of a cloth.

A special social event of the year was the Art Club's Valentine Party. At this party talks were given on different phases of art work.

The money taken in by the Art Club was used to purchase new art supplies.

Members elected to lead the club for the year were Bette Sanders, president; Magdalene Karamsky, treasurer. The group was sponsored by Miss Martha Carter, Clark's art teacher.

STAMP CLUB

During war time a morale-builder is especially important if we are to fight the war unceasingly and win it. In most cases a hobby provides an outlet for energies that's where the Stamp Club fits into the scheme of things at Clark. The most outstanding purpose of the club is to stimulate interest in collecting stamps. The group also aided collectors in progressing with their hobby and demonstrated correct methods of mounting and collecting stamps.

With Mr. Joe Griffin as sponsor the club had quite a busy year. Meetings were held at which members traded stamps. Occasionally Mr. Griffin gave a short talk on their common hobby. One meeting concerning identifying valuable stamps and preserving them proved especially interesting. Just recently a collection of 5,000 stamps was purchased by Mr. Griffin, and one of the main projects of the year was to classify them.

The students who were elected as officers were: Joe Lampo, president; Lillian Jelchak, vice president; and Mildred Kransky, secretary-treasurer.

LIBRARY CLUB

With Miss Harriet Lake as sponsor the Library Club bent all its activities toward the general purposes of the group during war time. To emphasize the right reading material for all students, especially those preparing themselves for service in the armed forces, to have the students how books act as a morale- and character-builder through reading for entertainment and knowledge, to aid the librarian in her tasks, and to assist the students in their work with anything connected with the library.

The members of the club did all this besides decorating and setting up appropriate displays on the bulletin board and table twice each week. They emphasized a special event such as Thanksgiving, Book Week, Lincoln's birthday, or graduation. They selected and changed the special motto on the librarian's desk each week and checked books for the grade school library also. Thus by performing acts helpful to all students, the members of the club lived up to its purpose.

Officers for the year were Anne Kokajka, president, Eleanor Pakko, vice president, and Ruth Samok, secretary-treasurer.

POETRY CLUB

During the present crisis culture is greatly endangered. Unless the people of our country continue to learn about their culture, they run the risk of losing it. This the Poetry Club has set its aim to counteract by its interest in poetry.

At the meetings various types of poetry were read and discussed. In order to help students better their understanding of the literary piece—which is necessary in obtaining points—poems of folklore, history, and mythology were often discussed. One of the most interesting aspects of the year presented poems with a national background. To study these own, the club members devoted a few meetings to original poetry.

Each year the club buys within new records in poetry books to add to the present collection. This year they purchased an album of poetry readings by Edwin St. Vincent Millay for use by members.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Carolyn Lambert the club progressed very well with these members as officers: Shirley Spook, president; Lorraine Bonney, vice president; Gertrude Harsh, secretary; and Margaret Iverson, treasurer.

STAGE PRODUCTION ✱

Under the direction of Miss Laura Schadt and Mr. R. B. Miller, staff advisors, and the student stage manager, Stephen George, the Stage Production Staff became one of the most important organizations in the school.

During the year each member was given experience in the six departments of stage work: lighting, projection, make-up, publicity, properties, and staging.

The complex changes of scenery in the year's largest production, "The American Way," were only possible through the aid of the Stage Production members. Since many organizations in and out of school use Clark's stage facilities, the staff rendered invaluable services.

RADIO CLUB ✱

One of the most vital clubs at Clark is the Radio Club, whose purpose is to give members a basic training in radio work. Thus it often provides future service men with reliable information in an important field.

During meetings one of the club's most important activities was learning and practicing the international code. Another project was the study of the theory of radio. Members also worked with the oscilloscope they constructed last year.

Officers for the year with Mr. Paul Wilkinson as sponsor were Ed Matusko, president; James Pappas, vice president; Leonard Lehto, secretary; and Steve Arendas, treasurer.

G A C

No one can be won with a portion of weak physical deficient people—that is apparent to all. In order to have strong, healthy bodies, exercise is essential. The GAC is an organization which encourages athletics for girls at Clark. Just as other clubs have arisen for the war effort the GAC has helped immensely by giving girls physical training.

In order to get into the club the girls had to participate in school sports and pass certain tests. In this way the GAC made certain that the girls who joined did so because they were genuinely interested, rather than because they simply wished to belong to another organization. To remain in the club it was necessary for the members to come out for at least one major and one minor sport. Thus a group of interested, enthusiastic and active members was steadily assured.

The major sports of the GAC were basketball and volleyball. Teams were organized for these sports. This year the Girls Bowling League was formed (and again) as in other years the GAC sponsored a ping pong tournament by the students of school. This plus the basketball, volleyball and baseball teams, provided important discussion matter for the meetings.

The most active members of the GAC were awarded letters. A certain number of points was set for each type of award, by attending practice sessions and by other methods the letters were earned. This also provided matters to talk over at the meetings.

Several of our pep assemblies were also sponsored by the GAC. The cheerleaders conducted the group and lead the students in a series of yells especially designed to arouse the fighting spirit of the Pioneers.

Members elected to lead the club were Rosemary Witt, president; Imogene Herly, vice-president; Mildred Spilly, secretary; and Elaine Gehring, treasurer.

Miss Corinne Otto, physical education director, sponsored the club again this year.

C CLUB

As always, the purpose of the C Club is important in school life. To stimulate scholarship, leadership and sportsmanship in the student body. This purpose is also important among people invited to balance a day. It is quite apparent that the C Club is a vital cog in the character-building mechanism at Clark. The organization directly stimulated enthusiasm and activity in the physical training courses, such as Competitive training, physical education classes and all the sports. This is extremely important in preparing the victory for any preliminary training before entrance into the armed services is extremely valuable.

In working toward the fulfillment of its purpose, the C Club engaged in many activities. Among these were the annual C Club dance and the long-awaited "In and Out" game. The "Outs" had only one varsity player and were defeated 61 to 14.

A major letter was the requirement of new members for admission to the organization. The club stressed the giving of awards and award letters to students for proficiency in certain sports.

The highlight of the year was the banquet for

C Club members and their families. At school, the most outstanding player in each sport was given an award. Selection of the special awards is decided by the boys participating in the activity—the democratic way. When a boy is chosen, it is because the others realized he had the best attitude or was the most valuable in the sport. When a member is recognized the most valuable in an activity, he automatically becomes eligible for the all-around best player award.

This year the winners were: Dick Eggers, C Club all-around award and most valuable in wrestling; Leonard Meldahl, most valuable in football; Eugene Ulenkovich, most valuable in basketball; Tom Wagner, most valuable in cross country and track; Warren Brown, most valuable in tennis; Joe Manchak, best mental attitude in football; and Godfrey Lohde, best mental attitude in basketball.

The members elected these students to lead the club: Dick Eggers, president; Tom Wagner, vice president; Bob Kaldski, secretary; Leonard Meldahl, sergeant at arms. Mr. Arvo Antilla was the sponsor again this year.

PUBLICATIONS

Because the war was important in the mind of every student and faculty member, the Pioneer News and the Powder Horn, left no doubt, fuel the accurate reporting of the part George Rogers Clark High School is playing in the war effort.

Guided by Sponsor Max W. Beatty, the Pioneer News, Clark's weekly newspaper, was awarded a

First Class rating by the National Scholastic Press Association. It enrolled in the United States Treasury Department's "Schools At War" program and published much valuable information concerning war stamp and bond sales, the scrap metal drive, and civilian defense activities. All of this news was printed in addition to the coverage of school events.

and club news, plus a full page of feature material each issue. Not only was all routine news coverage handled effectively but the staff members' creativity was demonstrated when the April Fool edition of the Pioneer News was circulated. Even though tales of newspaper reporting, editing and publishing were upset, thus providing the student body with a happy laugh of the year.

Five hundred and twenty-five dollars in war bonds were purchased by the staff as material aid to the war effort. The staff of the Pioneer News five years hence will be the recipients of this investment.

Headed by Co editors Adele Kaplan and Helen Nordmark, the staff consisted of Lydia Kotarski, Evelyn Sabol and Corliss Golding, copy editors; Bette Sanders and Shirley Sprak, feature writers; Edmund Best, sports editor; Marilyn Jordan, city news editor; Phyllis Root, mimeoscope operator; William Bechtel, mimeographer; Inabelle Austin, Francis Marston and Norma Hansen, typists; Patsy Malloy and Vera Kie, circulation and exchange managers; and Patsy Kennedy, Juanita Campbell and Margaret Lyden, correspondents. Eleven of the above mentioned students were elected to the National Honor Society.

While the Pioneer News attempted to give the student body a weekly picture of Clark at war, the Powder Horn set for itself an even greater objective: for it undertook the task of summarizing the activities of the entire year in one compact yearbook, particularly those directly connected with the war effort. Under Mr. Beatty's leadership, the Powder Horn staff members were selected at the beginning of the school year. With Corliss Golding editing the annual and Lydia Kotarski acting as copy editor, work on the Powder Horn proceeded smoothly. Other staff members were Bernard Biel, sports editor; Juanita Campbell and Rose Marie Vatrocskay, class editors; Bette Sanders, artist; Francis Marston, typist; Adele Kaplan, Evelyn Sabol, and Patsy Kennedy, literary assistants; Helen Hanchar and Rosemary Witt, advertising managers; and James Pappas and Donald Bauer, subscription managers. Ten of the fourteen staff members were elected to the National Honor Society.

This year, more than ever before, the two major publications of Clark High School were interrelated. Their aims were identical. To a great degree the same students served on both staffs. Where publicity directly connected with the war effort was concerned, the Pioneer News and the Powder Horn performed their duties to an immeasurable degree.

ATHLETICS

High school athletics were never more important than they are now. The spirit of competitive sports creates healthy minds and bodies, in addition to fine sportmanship and the will to win. Military authorities agree that athletes who have acquired these capabilities make the best fighting men in our armed forces.

Clark's athletic program did not just carry on as usual during the year 1942-43. Instead it was stepped up to the war tempo, and greater emphasis than ever was placed on the will to win. Paced by the indomitable leadership of the coaching staff, the fighting Pioneers became known as the battling demons of the Calumet region.

Outstanding were the winning of the coveted sectional championship by the basketball team and the completing of the most successful football season in the history of the school. Minor sports, although their successes were not so great, contributed to the war effort.

Clark's well-rounded athletic activities have prepared the boys for the problems they may face in whatever lies ahead.

COMMANDOS

Leaping off the ramp, scaling the fourteen-foot ladder, hurdling the obstacles—tomorrow's rangers are the George Rogers Clark Commandos.

Especially now is a healthy body important. Strong fighting men are needed to combat the foes of democracy. The Commando course at Clark, the best equipped and most difficult in the region, attempts to toughen and prepare over one hundred and thirty junior and senior boys for the battles ahead.

The course includes hurdles, a wooden wall, a ladder, and various other obstacles. Under the direction of Athletic Director Wayne Cunningham and Coach Arvo Antilla, the Commandos showed that the course was a 'cinch.' This was nothing—they wanted more!

Beware, foes of America! You don't stand a chance! The Clark Commandos are headed your way, and nothing can stop 'em.

Now know the Pop's, say who! Norbert Adams

Coach Arvo Anttila's gridgers completed one of the most successful gridiron seasons in Clark history. Captain Dick Eggers led the squad which won four games, lost only one and tied three times. The Pioneers finished third in the conference standings. In the fight for city championship the Pioneers tied for first with Hammond High School by defeating Hammond Tech and tying the Wildcats.

In the first game of the season the Pioneers played host to South Bend Catholic on Clark's athletic field. The Lions outplayed the Pioneers, but the Clark gridgers outscored their opponents to win 20-0.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders were stopped by the valiant Pioneers on Roosevelt's field long enough for the Robertsdale team to snatch a 6-6 tie.

Back on the home field again, the Valparaiso Vikings fell before the ax of the victory-stepping Clark gridgers 10-0. In this game Bob Canner, Pioneer substitute hallback, received a knee injury which kept him out of football togs for the remainder of the season.

Washington of East Chicago noised out the Pioneers 12-0 at Hammond field the following week. The Senators went on to take the eastern title and the mythical state championship.

After a week's rest the Clark gridgers traveled to Hammond as heavy favorites, but the Wildcats managed to hold the Pioneers to a 12-12 tie.

Tolleston and Hammond Tech were defeated by the Pioneers in the two following weeks, 11-0 and 54-12 respectively. These two games were played on the home field. Incidentally Clark won all its games on home grounds.

Whiting's Oilers were the Pioneers' last foes for the 1942 season. In the early stages it looked as if the Oilers would swamp Clark, but the courageous Pioneers fought every inch of the way to come out of the battle with a 6-6 tie. Hallback George Buksar's 30-yard run from scrimmage featured the cross-city contest.

Clark's freshman-sophomore football team, coached by Mr. Edward Shields, won five games and lost none to capture its second consecutive city championship.

BASKETBALL

Sectional change? Yes, for the first time in Pioneer history a visiting team has captured one of the most coveted titles in the region.

This championship changed the most successful basketball season in the existence of Clark High School. The speedy Pioneers racked up seventeen wins and dropped only six contests. In the conference standing the Pioneers placed fourth with ten wins and five losses.

Clark's most notable feat was the victory over the Roosevelt Rough Riders in the semifinal game of the sectional at Roosevelt. The Pioneers erased a thirteen-point deficit to pull the game out of the fire in the few winning seconds.

At one time during the season the Pioneers averaged over fifty points in five consecutive engagements. The five teams to fall before the Pioneers during their phenomenal streak were Valparaiso, South Bend, Washington, Whiting, Hammond Tech., and Lew Wallace.

Coach Ed Shields' squad entered the sectional tournament without the services of Ralph Theissen and Joe Figuly. Theissen was ill with influenza and Figuly suffered a broken arm in a game with Roosevelt two weeks before tournament time.

In the sectional held at East Chicago, the Pioneers romped over Whiskey and Wallace in the first and second games. In the semifinals the Pioneers snatched a last second victory from Roosevelt and outwitted a stalling Hammond Tech. team in the finals to capture the sectional crown.

In the regional tourney the Lew Wallace Hawks avenged an earlier beating at the hands of the Pioneers by whipping Clark 19-54.

On April 19 the Clark basketball team was honored at a banquet sponsored by the newly organized Pioneer Booster Club, composed of men from the community.

Louis O'Donohue, only graduating member of the team, was voted honorary captain.

Clark's reserve squad also coached by Mr. Shields, won five games and lost ten. Although the Settlers had a poor season, they produced line competition in the city squad during practice sessions. The freshman team, coached by Mr. Arvo Anttila, won four games and lost twelve.

TRACK

Thirty-five to forty boys reported for track in early spring. The squad, coached by Athletic Director Wayne Cunningham, started rather poorly but improved steadily as the season progressed. An average of two meets each week were scheduled in addition to the relays, conference, and sectional contests.

Regular scoring trackmen were Alan Freeberg, miler and Steve Homyak, Eugene Demkovich, Bernard Skirka and Dave Wetnight who ran in the relays and the 100 and 50 yard dashes. George Bakser and Norbert Adams participated in the field events.

Tom Wagner, a senior miler, was lost to the squad because of a knee injury sustained in wrestling.

WRESTLING

Clark's matmen won one wrestling meet in four contests during the 1942-43 season. Under Wayne Cunningham's squad placed eighth in the state meet at Bloomington and tied for fourth with Washington of East Chicago in the conference meet.

Captain Dick Eggers captured the state heavy weight title for the second consecutive year.

Meets were held with Roosevelt and Washington of East Chicago. Transportation difficulties and the scarcity of wrestling teams in local schools hampered Clark's chances of scheduling inter-scholastic meets.

Clark's victory was a 20-18 decision over the Washington Senators. This meet took place in the middle of January at the Clark gymnasium.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Clark's cross-country team, coached by Mr. Paul Wilbur, concluded the season with three victories and seven defeats besides placing fifth in the conference meet. The junior team, consisting of freshmen and sophomores, competed in two meets and lost both of them.

Hobart, Washington of East Chicago, and Edson of East Gary were victims of the Pioneer barriers.

The squad has visions of a successful season next fall because it is losing only one man, Captain Tom Wagner.

Although cross-country seems almost forgotten in extra-curricular activities, it helps to train boys for other sports. It enables participants to run long distances without becoming short-winded.

TENNIS

Coach Joe Griffin's tennis team scheduled ten meets last autumn. This group, perhaps the least known of all the minor sports, won three matches, lost five, and tied two.

The racket wielders met South Bend Central, Whiting, Washington of East Chicago, Blue Island, and Emerson. Victories were scored over Whiting twice and Blue Island once.

This year's squad was centered around Warren Brown, Ray Wasieleski, Neal Creswell, Edmund Schroer, David Wetnight, and Lawrence Balesley. Brown and Wasieleski will be lost to the team by graduation.

Warren Brown became the main cog of the squad's machinery by winning seven matches.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Four major and two minor sports composed the calendar of athletics for Clark girls.

Basketball, individual bowling and baseball composed the major sports schedule for this year. Because bowling is a national and scholastic game, because so popular this year, it was made one of the major sports.

Badminton and ping-pong, well liked by nearly everyone of every age, were the minor sports.

As in previous years, the officers of the Girls' Athletic Club supervised all these sports. In this way those participating in the activities had capable and efficient leadership. Miss Corinne Otto, girls' physical education instructor, acted as sponsor.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990–1999) (Office of National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (2000) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the health and quality of life of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- To ensure that older people have the opportunity to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people have access to the services and support they need to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people have the opportunity to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 100% (Flegal et al. 2002). In the United Kingdom, the prevalence of obesity has increased from 10% in 1980 to 15% in 1997 (Health Survey for England 1997). In the United States, the prevalence of obesity has increased from 15% in 1980 to 23% in 1994 (Flegal et al. 2002).

Obesity is a complex condition with many causes. It is a result of an imbalance between energy intake and energy expenditure. The most common cause of obesity is a combination of a diet high in calories and a sedentary lifestyle. Other causes include genetic factors, hormonal imbalances, and certain medications. Obesity is a major risk factor for many chronic diseases, including heart disease, diabetes, and certain types of cancer. It is also associated with psychological problems, such as depression and low self-esteem.

There are many ways to prevent and treat obesity. The most effective way to prevent obesity is to maintain a healthy diet and an active lifestyle. This means eating a diet that is low in calories and high in fiber, and getting at least 30 minutes of exercise each day. If you are already obese, losing weight can help reduce your risk of developing chronic diseases. There are many ways to lose weight, including dieting, exercise, and surgery. However, the most effective way to lose weight is to combine diet and exercise.
